Final Project Concept

The concept for my project was to create an informative sketch with Processing. I have been paying to local news in New York City, and one thing that really caught my attention was the MTA Fare Evasion issue. There have been protests because people find how the government is going about treating people (mostly of color) unfairly because they believe not paying for public transportation is a criminal activity. The subways are also in bad condition, and money is going towards employing more cops in stations instead of improving the stations. I decided to create an easy, visually appealing, informative piece of work for people to get an understanding what's happening.
